Blind of Prey.
The rapacious birds breed slowly, only one brood being reared a year. Hawks and owls have for this and their domestic history is full of happiness and interest. They are complementary to each other, the hawks hunting by day, the owls by night—the work of one supplementing that of the other. The eye of the bird of prey is the most perfect organ of sight that exists, and were it not for this class of birds the hilly districts would soon be overrun with harmful rodents.

FRIDAY, JULY 2, 1920.

The Fourth AND CIVIL WAR.

The glorious Fourth being upon us
once more, we go to the "Declaration of Independence" for the above quotation. "He" the King of England
"has excited domestic insurrections amongst us," said the forefathers, who gave that as an important reason why the United States of America should be freed from British rule.
"He has excited domestic insurrections amongst us."

But in these latter days we pretty nearly forget this one good declaration of liberty. We harbor in the country today thousands of men who are exciting domestic insurrection—civil war—in America, who do not own allegiance to the forefathers, that brought us liberty, security of life and a reasonable measure of happiness as a people, but who openly and blatantly own allegiance to one Lenin, a Russian mongolian.

The mass of Americans are true blue. We do not believe that the foulmouthed speeches of Bolshevism in this country will be able to overcome them and democratic freedom, unless by a fluke—but don't forget that they
the one per cent in the total population, won Russia by a fluke. Nevertheless, on this sacred Independence day, let all American patriots dedicate themselves anew to the principles in the original declaration to the end that we shall have a government "of the people, by the people and for the people," the whole people. Above all—
Be watchful and keep your powder dry!

WORKING ON TAXATION PLAN

The demand for relief in cities has resulted in a movement being started to interest rural sections. Wednesday a meeting was held in Columbus and committees were appointed from city and rural districts to work out some plan. O. E. Bradfute of this place is on the tax convention committee.
This committee is to devise a form of taxation which will be presented to the various interested and if satisfactory will be placed before a convention to be called for that purpose.

Pie for 3,000 Persons.

In the village of Denby Vale, in Yorkshire, England, it has been the custom to celebrate any national event by the baking of an enormous Yorkshire pie for the villagers and those coming from all the countryside around. In 1788 the first pie was baked to celebrate the return to health of King George III; the second was made at the conclusion of peace between England and France in 1815;
the last and largest of all was baked in the year 1887 for the Victoria Jubilee. This enormous pie weighed two tons and cost about $1,200. The contents consisted of 600 pounds of beef, a whole calf, and a whole sheep, 650 potatoes and 600 pounds of flour.
Three thousand persons partook of it.

WHEN THEY DROVE THE HUNS

No American Who Took Part in the Capture of Berzy Will Ever Forget the Thrill.

The fall of the plateau south of Solissons and the thrust across the Chateau-Thierry road sealed the fate of the great Marne salient. The late of the Twenty-eighth Infantry, First division, made this success possible by their grim tenacity in driving the Germans out of Berzy after being repeatedly repulsed in their brave efforts to take the place.

But, despite every effort, the grim walls of Berzy still loomed ahead beyond the shell-pocked strip of upland as the summer twilight faded from the sky. Through the night its guns, like those of a beleaguered fortress, continued to flame. In it stood at bay the last German garrison of that "plateau south of Solissons," with the whole western front of the Marne salient pinned upon it, which had for so long held a black menace over Paris.

Now add then there is a man who conceals a timid heart behind a loud, drooping mustache and an uncertain appearance of a western sheriff of the days of Jesse James, but Gen. Beaumont B. Buck is not one of them. As the second hand of his watch marked 30 minutes past 8 and the barrage fell, Gen. Buck stretched his long legs out in front of the first wave, advised his men by no means words to follow him and get the d— boches this time, and led off the streaming rush across the open.

They followed—who would not with such a leader? On and on they went toward the hot muzzles that flamed through the cracks of split walls and behind fallen masses of masonry, on past those muzzles, yelling, cursing, striking down with swinging blows the desperately resisting Germans behind. On by the massive quadrangle of buildings in the western edge of the village, past the ravished church and down the crooked main street until they pulled up where the road pitched down into the Crise valley and against the last eastern walls of the hamlet on which patterned battle and counter-battle German nests clear beyond the valley. Joseph Mills Hanson in the Home Sector.

That Troublesome Apostrophe.
The woman living next door to the schoolhouse was a sister of uncertain age. And she seemed to put in most of her time watching the schoolhouse so that she could find some reason for complaints. Many had come and many had been settled in a way that had caused sorrow to the boys of the school. And this spring came a new one. During a ball game in the school yard several of the boys had occupied as their grand stand seats the roof of the lady-next-door's chicken house.

The principal was inclined to stand with the boys, so she made their punishment very light. They were to write a note of apology to the woman. The note was written and dispatched one morning. That afternoon brought a fiery splinter to the building. She said the note was insult added to outrage.

The principal took the note and read it. "We, the boys of the school, offer our apology for sitting on the old hen's house during our ball game last Friday."

The boys said it was all the fault of a misplaced apostrophe. The teacher was wise.—Indianapolis News.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By REV. P. H. FITZWATER, D. D.,
Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.
(Copyright, 1929, Western Newspaper Union.)

LESSON FOR JULY 4
DAVID IN CAMP AND COURT.

LESSON TEXT—I Sam. 17:1-18:16.
GOLDEN TEXT—David behaved himself wisely in all his ways; and the Lord was with him.—I Sam. 2:34.
ADDITIONAL MATERIAL—I Sam. 17:1-17; Ephes. 6:10-12.
PRIMARY TOPIC—David and the Giant.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Shepherd Boy Conquers a Giant.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Fighting the Good Fight.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Overthrowing Modern Goliaths.

1. David in Camp (I Samuel, 17).
While the armies stood eyeing each other for battle the Philistines, having a warrior among them of great strength, sought to decide the war by a combat between two selected champions. The nation whose champion was slain was to be subject to the other.

1. The champions (vv. 4-7). (1) Goliath of the Philistines (vv. 4-11). Note his characteristics: (a) He was a giant (v. 4). Saul made no attempt to meet this giant. Even Jonathan, who had distinguished himself at Michmash (I Sam. 14), seems to have lacked in courage. (b) He was filled with conceit. His size, his panoply of armor and his strength caused him to believe that no evil could befall him. (c) He was boastful. Likely his reputation reminded them of a former experience when Samson, Israel's giant, wrought such great mischief among them. (d) He was defiant. He openly defied the army of Israel—the people of the Most High. (e) He was scornful. He treated the Israelites with the utmost contempt.

(2) David the Israelite (vv. 13-37). In the providence of God, David was sent to the camp at a time to hear the boasting of this giant and contemptible Philistine. His three eldest brothers were in the army and his father sent him with some provisions for them as well as for the captain. While talking with his brothers Goliath made his appearance. The sight of Israel's hero, who had been sent for God, prompted David to offer his service. He was not a blind enthusiast who disregarded the use of means, but was careful to use means, and most particular as to what they should be. He put aside the untired armor of Saul, knowing that God's will for his ally was to use by faith that which he had thought insignificant.

2. The battle (vv. 38-48). When Goliath beheld David coming up against him he cursed him by his gods Dagon, Baal and Ashtaroth, knowing that it was not merely a battle between David and Goliath, but between the true God and false gods. David hastened to meet Goliath. A stone from his sling smote Goliath and he fell to the earth upon his face. David went forth in the name of the Lord of Hosts that all the earth might know that there was a God in Israel.

3. The victory (vv. 49-58). Goliath was killed and the Philistine army routed. This victory is a prophecy of a greater one when the devil, the defiant enemy of God, shall be broken and his army put to flight.

4. David in Court (18:1-16).
1. Saul jealous of David (vv. 1-9). David went into battle with Goliath out of zeal for God and true religion, not for personal glory; but it turned out as always, that because he made God first, God honored him. "His name shall be great, I will honor." Upon David's return from the pursuit of the Philistines he was met by a triumphal chorus of women from all the cities of Israel, shouting praises unto him for his victory over their enemies. This was too much for Saul. This was but a place in his heart for this evil spirit to dwell. When one gives himself up to the indulgence of his baser passions the devil finds a place in his heart to dwell.

2. David's wise conduct (vv. 12-16). Because Saul recognized that God had departed from him and that David must increase while he must decrease, he tried to get rid of David. He sent him from him and made him captain over his army. His envy even assumed a role of cunning and he offered his daughter to David as a reward for bravery in battle. Not that he cared for David, but that the Philistine might kill him instead of doing it with his own hands (v. 17). In spite of all this, David acts discreetly. He wins the favor of the people and is loved by the Lord. Despite Saul's intrigues David went from success to success.

Christ With the Disciples.
For forty days Christ was with the disciples talking with them of the things pertaining to the Kingdom of God. If we cannot believe that the Apostles deceived others, it seems (if possible) still more unlikely that they were the victims of deception.—Bishop Westcott.

Master of Circumstances.
It is the man or woman of faith, and hence of courage, who is the master of circumstances, and who makes his or her power felt in the world.

Poetry.
If it be of no use to make men happy, to quicken in them the joy of living, to lighten their pleasures, to dry their tears; if it be of no use to teach them wisdom, to open their eyes, to purify their thoughts, to give them to fight, to brace them to endure, to teach them to be gentle; then, indeed, we may ask, "What is the use of poetry?" But, while poetry can do all these things, I think it must be allowed by the most practical that it has a very important part to play in the work of the world.—Richard Le Gallienne.

Covering Capacity—the test of Paint Prices

"How much surface will it cover?"

THAT'S the point that really decides whether a paint is cheap or expensive. Judge Hanna's Green Seal by this—and every other quality standard—and it will prove this is the paint really cheapest.

HANNA'S GREEN SEAL PAINT gives maximum "yardage" to every gallon. It has covering capacity greater by many yards than so-called "cheap" paints. Also it WEARS longer and looks better.

The Chinchilla.

The chinchilla, the South American animal that produces the expensive fur of the same name, has become exceedingly rare. The most far-reaching species, according to Country Life, inhabits the higher Andes, from the south of Chile to the north of Bolivia. Some years ago chinchillas were plentiful, but owing to the enormous demand for the fur and the reckless way in which the Indians killed them there are now few left. The Peruvian government has passed a law that prohibits for five years the killing of chinchillas and the exporting of their skins. The chinchilla is a rock squirrel, about the size and shape of a large guinea pig, but with large ears and a long bushy tail. The fur is of a clear gray, and is extremely thick and soft—YOUTH'S Companion.

Telling the Time by Cat's Eyes.

In various parts of Turkey the watch and the clock are extremely rare, but the natives have an exceedingly ingenious way of approximating the time, and some of them hit it with considerable accuracy. They locate two cardinal points of the compass, and then folding their hands together in such a manner that the forefingers point upward and in opposite directions, they observe the shadow cast. In the morning or the evening, at certain known hours one finger or the other will point directly to the sun. A comparison of the two points, then, determines the hours between. Another system followed in Turkey and some other countries of the Orient is to observe the eyes of a cat. Early in the morning and evening the pupils are round. At 9 and 3 o'clock they are oval, and at noon they consist of a narrow slit.

Co-operation in Whale Fishing.

The Twofold bay whale hunters tell that when the antarctic whales, on their way to northern waters for calving, appear off Twofold bay, with them come the "killers"—a fierce species of grampus whale, which is the great enemy of the true whale; and that these killers have learned to herd the whales into the bay for the human hunters to deal with. Man wants from the whale only the blubber, the whalebone (from the roof of the mouth), and when it is present, the ambergris. The rest of the carcass is left to be devoured. It is said that the killers—the same killers come year after year to the bay—have learned that to co-operate with man is the easiest way to a feast of whale flesh, and so concentrate their energies on driving a victim toward the whaling boats as dogs drive sheep.—London Morning Post.

Cleverness.

There are two kinds of cleverness—the studied and the unstudied. The unstudied is, of course, the better. The studied, as a substitute, is preferable to no cleverness at all. Let those who aspire to cleverness examine the arts and graces, look for the unusual element in every situation, learn new phrases, commit to memory vivid, wholesome stories such as the one about the buccle officer who received from the chief of police in a distant city six photographs of a much sought crook, taken at different angles, and who, inside of 24 hours, telegraphed that he had arrested five of the men and expected to have the sixth in custody before daylight.

Her Shoes Hurt Her Feet.

As a general thing, when you see a woman hobbling along the street with an agonized expression it is a sign that she's got more foot than head.—Dallas News.

NANCY'S LAST TANTRUM
By GEORGE E. CORB

(Copyright, 1919, Western Newspaper Union.)

"In one of her tantrums, is she?" "Worse than ever!"

Mild-mannered Harvey Mills rubbed his head and looked nonplussed. Ned Thurston, boy of all work about the Mills home and a half nephew of Mrs. Nancy Mills, looked excited and eager. His eyes were snapping, his lips moving in an erratic way.

It was quite dusk and Ned was breathless, for he had come on a dead run to the shop from half a mile distance. Harvey Mills had been sleeping for two nights. Practically he had been driven away from home when his irrationally whimsical, domineering, jealous Nancy Mills had developed one of her regular "spells" and Harvey had sought refuge and peace.

"That isn't all," proclaimed Ned. She has been raising a rumpus all day long. Threatens to get a constable and have you dragged home in handcuffs. Says she'll sue you for desertion. Says, Mr. Mills, I'm truly sorry for you. She is my relative, but the way she treats you is scandalous."

"Poor Nancy, I suppose it's natural for her and she can't help it," sighed the patient Harvey. "You'll go back home, but it's just to begin the same old misery all over again."

"You're foolish," advised Ned, a glow of wisdom upon his young face. "I've been thinking it all over, and now is your chance to give Aunt Nancy a scare and a lesson. She's not the worst ever. She's awful good to me, and I know, thinks there's nobody in the world like you, when she isn't stirred up with that stubborn temper of hers. You're a peaceful, quiet man, Mr. Mills, and she imposes on you, and you let her. Now then, you follow the advice of a young fellow who likes you and you'll be glad. See if you aren't."

"What you driving at, Ned?" projected his puzzled employer.

"Well, Aunt Nancy is in the trouble of her life."

"Yes, sir, I'm speaking the truth. She's runned to the limit and you've got her where you can let her stay and cool off that hot temper, that's sure. Just this has happened: Aunt Nancy went into the little ice house sunk in the back yard. You know it's got a heavy door with a big double lock. Usually I open the door open when we go in. She didn't this time. She left the key to the lock and slam went the door, and shut her in."

"Why, Ned, she'll half freeze! Why didn't you let her out at once?"

"Because I got an idea. It's your chance. I didn't let on I was in hearing when I ran out about it. I just sneaked around the ice house. There's a ventilator slot at the rear. I edged close to the wall. I could hear her scolding like a mad hen. She raved about some one else fixing that lock purposely to shut her in."

"We must get the poor thing out at once," spoke Harvey solicitously.

"You listen to me, please, Mr. Mills, and you'll thank me later. I've thought it all out. 'See that,' and Ned drew an old-fashioned pistol from his pocket.

"Why, what are you doing with that?" asked the startled Harvey.

"I brought it from the house. And that will do for poison, and Ned produced a bottle filled with a dark colored liquid.

He set both the articles on a bench in the middle of the shop. Then he hunted around until he found a piece of rope. He noosed one end and tied the other to a low rafter overhead. Harvey viewed all these operations in a maze of wonder.

"Whisper, now," said Ned mysteriously, a grin of satisfaction on his face, and gradually as he outlined his plan enlightenment inspired Harvey. He seated himself near the table, he posed forlornly.

"If Nancy suspects any play acting she'll be madder than ever," he observed uneasily.

"You leave it to me," chirruped Ned, and sped from the shop.

When he got back to the house he stationed himself near to the ice-house, and began shouting out the name of his aunt vociferously. From the direction of the ventilator there finally floated out a muffled call.

"Is that you, Ned? I'm shut in. Quick! let me out. Oh, my, she shivered as Ned opened the door. I'm nearly frozen to death. Let me get in the house and start a fire."

"Say, don't waste any time on that," gasped Ned in alarming accents, catching her arm and heading in the direction of the shop. "I missed you and told Mr. Mills. And how was he to know, but you'd bet ten his heart by leaving him. And he's desperate; yes, sir, desperate. And if you want to save him, run like a whitehead, for when I last saw him he was sitting in his shop with a pistol and poison and a rope."

Mrs. Mills uttered a frantic scream. "Oh, Ned! he may kill himself. Yes, yes; get me to him. Hurry, hurry!"

Pale, breathless, distracted, Nancy Mills burst into the "suicide room" as they reached the shop.

"Oh, my dear! Oh, how wicked I have been!" she wailed as she threw her arms about her husband and hugged and kissed him. "Come home, and stay home, and I'll never fuss or fuss or rampage again." And she never did.

Tales of Ancient History.

Tatian in his "Book Against the Greeks" relates that among the Thracians flourished three ancient historians, Theodotus, Hysicrates and Mochus, who all of them delivered in their histories an account of the league and friendship between Solomon and Hiram when Hiram gave his daughter to Solomon and furnished him with timber for the building of the temple. The same is affirmed by Menander of Pergamus. This Hiram, of course, was the king of Tyre.—Christian Science Monitor.

CAST OFF BURDEN
Load of Thirty Years Lifted From Woman's Heart

Attempted Restitution of Sum of Money Which She Had Found and Kept When in Dire Extremity Filled Her With Joy.

"Thank God, I have found you at last. I must see you."

It was the quivering voice of an old woman, conscience stricken for 30 years because she had kept $100 that did not belong to her and now able to pay with her dead son's insurance money.

She was speaking over the telephone in Philadelphia to D. E. Irving, head of Irving & Lelper, cotton, Chester.

"But I do not know you," he said, speaking from his mill. "Why do you want to see me?"

"I love you money," said the woman. Her insistence caused him to agree to meet her in Broad street station, where she was to wear a shawl over her left arm and a bag in her right hand as marks of recognition.

The manufacturer met her. With her was a younger woman.

Thirty years ago, she told him, she was making in Philadelphia the kind of a job that a man dropping a wallet.

She described the man. It was a close description of James Irving, Mr. Irving's father, who died years ago and who was heir of James Irving & Sons, wool manufacturers, Irvington.

I picked up the wallet, the woman said. "It contained a $100 bill and two pennies. There was also a card in it. I do not remember all that was on the card. But I remember the name 'Irving' and 'wool merchant'."

"I had lost my husband only three months before. I did not know how to pay the rent. I had no shoes for my children. I was horribly tempted. And I did not resist. I did not overtake the owner of the wallet. I kept the money."

"But ever since then it has been on my mind, on my conscience. There was not a day that I did not think about it. There was not a night that I did not ask God in my prayer to forgive me. It was the only dishonest thing I ever did."

"I kept the wallet and the card with me always, hoping that some day I might be able to repay. But I could not. I was poor all my life. And 20 years ago, in moving, I lost the wallet and the card."

"But I did not forget the name. Three months ago my oldest son died. He left me some money through an insurance. It was the first money I ever had. Please, please, sir, take it. She said, as she stretched out her hand. She held five $20 bills.

When Mr. Irving asked her how she had found him she told him she had telephoned to hundreds of "Irving's" in the last three months. She telephoned to Irving's in Philadelphia, Wilmington and even in Pittsburgh and New York, but always received the same curt reply:

"You must have the wrong party."

When Mr. Irving told the woman he could not accept the money because he did not know that his father ever lost it she nearly broke down. She begged him to take it.

"Won't you please take this terrible load off my heart at last?"

The manufacturer promised her to ask his oldest sister if she remembered the occurrence. But his sister remembered it only vaguely if at all. And Mr. Irving wrote a letter to the woman asking her to favor him by accepting the $100 as a gift.

The name of the woman, who lives in Tioga, was not disclosed.—Philadelphia Evening Bulletin.

A Very Gentle Hint.

Now, one mode of the children was generous and the other was close, indeed. Uncle Number One, however, was not satisfied with his own generosity. He wished Number Two to know and feel the joy of giving, particularly to his own nephews and nieces. He wondered and wondered as to the best way to show him that he should be more generous. Then one day came his opportunity.

He was driving by Uncle Number Two's farm and noticed all his fine chickens. Now, the mother of the wee children did not have chickens. So Uncle Number One, of generous habits, stopped his machine, walked up to the house and accosted Uncle Number Two, of parsimonious fame. "I just saw your chickens," he remarked pleasantly, "and I wondered if you wouldn't sell me some eggs for our little nephews and nieces to eat."

The hint was taken.

Clearing House for Brains.

The demand for technical men is about to be taken care of by a proposed clearing house for brains which will maintain a central headquarters and will be composed of representatives of all the technical colleges in the country and at these headquarters a directory and filing system of the demands of the country for professional assistance of this character will be kept. Such a system will enable the industries to secure men that are wanted and will offer facilities for graduates and other to secure places for which they are qualified with little loss of time or energy.

Labor's Ring on Tin Cans.

Gravely is the only power used in a new device for labeling tin cans, which roll down an incline over paste, then over the pile of labels, then over brushes which smooth the labels.

Have Same Speech.

The old Gaelic or Celtic languages at the people of Scotland and Ireland are still spoken in places of English in the south and west of Scotland, in parts of Wales and other places, but the great majority of the people of both Scotland and Ireland speak English. They have their variations of speech due to brogue or dialect, just as different sections of England and America have, but in all essentials their language is ours.

Eminent Geologist Issued Warning of Natural Gas Shortage
Almost a Year Ago

In October, 1919, Prof. I. C. White State Geologist of West Virginia, prepared a paper warning the natural gas men of the rapid exhaustion of Ohio's natural gas resources. His paper was read at the meeting of The Ohio Gas & Oil Men's Association in convention at Columbus. One statement he made was that:

THREE QUARTERS OF THE ORIGINAL SUPPLY OF NATURAL GAS IN THE APPALACHIAN FIELD IS ALREADY EXHAUSTED—OF THE PORTION USED FOR DOMESTIC PURPOSES AT LEAST 70 TO 80 PER CENT IS NOW WASTED THROUGH THE USE OF CRUDE BURNERS.

This statement by the State Geologist of our Neighbor state, should be given to all gas users. It is only fair that you would know the situation as we know it.

THEY'RE SO GOOD

I Just Love Edgemont Crackers

THANK you, mother for putting them in my lunch. All of the girls in our troop like them so much.

Whenever we go for a hike or have a lunch out doors, we just can't get enough of them.

Then you always let me have all I want any time I want them because you say they can't hurt me even if they do taste so good.

And aren't the Edgemont Cookies and Cakes good! There are so many different kinds—Daisy Jumbles, High Schools, Panama Cookies, Cherry Blossoms, Ginger Snaps, Lemon Buns, and a lot more.

I don't know which I like best—guess I like them all best. Because every time you send me to our grocery for "Edgemont" Cookies, Cakes or Crackers, I can hardly wait till I get home to taste them.

HAVE YOU TRIED

The Edgemont—DAISY JUMBLES

Delicious rich sugar cakes like grandmother used to make when sugar, milk and eggs were plentiful. Named "Daisy Jumbles" because of their design and uncommonly good "eating" qualities.

Not only are Edgemont—Daisy Jumbles a dessert in themselves, but with strawberries or other fruits, with hot or cold beverages, and with ice cream or frozen desserts, they make those good-things taste more delightful.

Serve Edgemont—DAISY JUMBLES—you'll satisfy your family's craving for sweets—and save your sugar for canning fruit.

Girls and Boys Differ

In what they see. That was well illustrated in our bakery a short time ago.

A class of sturdy, upstanding boys from St. Mary College, just crossing the threshold of manhood, made a trip through our bakery. They were interested most in seeing the "wheels go round."

They saw the stores of materials and noted the well-known brands of quality products—the materials from which the large variety of "Edgemont" products are made. The big mixers, blending the materials, and kneading the dough, so thoroughly, so cleanly, claimed their attention. It was hard to pull them away from the machines that were rolling, forming and cutting the Cookies, Cakes and Crackers.

Our bakers is always open for inspection. We shall be glad to have more girls and boys—and women and men—to visit our plant. Our "kitchen" is always out for you.

You will then see why our Trade Mark stands for PURITY and WHOLESALENES.

Send Your Children

to the grocery that is run by YOUR NEIGHBOR. You know that he will give your child the kind of good-things-to-eat that you like best. And when the boy or girl asks for EDGEMONT Cookies, Cakes or Crackers you can be sure that you will get exactly what you want.

ELECTRICAL INDUSTRY OFFERS SPLENDID OPPORTUNITY FOR GIRLS.

The great number of uses that electricity has been put to not only in the city but in the suburban homes as well, has created an enormous demand for electrical appliances of all kinds. This has opened up a new field for delightful employment for girls which entails no more danger than working at home and enables them to earn more than they can in any other industry.

The Robbins & Myers Company, Springfield, Ohio, has made employment more delightful for its girls by establishing a Dormitory where girls from out of town may stay at a nominal cost, under the best environments, such as a capable and companionable Matron, hot and cold bath, reception room, running water in each room, piano and other musical instruments as well as good, clean wholesome food.

The ever increasing business of the Robbins & Myers Company is continually making opportunities for girls seeking employment.

WILLIS WILL NOT WITHDRAW

Frank B. Willis refuses to withdraw from the senatorial race for the Republican nomination. It is said that at a recent conference Congressman Fess urged Willis to withdraw in that he could not be elected if nominated. The object of the withdrawal is to clear the field to get the large Republican vote from the big cities that cannot be counted for Willis.

FARMERS WILL STAND PAT.

Ohio wool growers will stand pat and not be stampeded into selling their wool at present prices of 40 cents of representative wool men and Farm Bureau Federation leaders.

It is pointed out that, whereas wool prices have slumped heavily, woolen goods are still as high as ever. Also, it is asserted that the price of wool has little effect on the price of manufactured goods.

Last year, figures kept over-show wool sold for from 65 to 90 cents a pound. This year, according to growers, there seems to be no actual price and buyers are making no bid. Wool growers say that if wool should be sold now it would bring scarcely half of last year's prices. Bankers, it is said, generally advance about 75 per cent of the probable selling price of wool in storage. Just now it is reported that Wyoming and Idaho producers are able to obtain advances of only 10 to 15 cents a pound. In Ohio, where wool is of better quality, where farmers have top credits, and where personally counts for as much as 25 to 45 cents a pound advance.

"Very little of the cost of a suit of clothes or an overcoat goes into the farmer's pocket," says W. W. Reynolds, Utica, treasurer of the Ohio Wool Growers' Association. "In an $80 suit, for instance, there is put not to exceed $5 worth of wool. The other $75 goes for overhead, labor, transportation, selling cost and profit. We are not assuming to say whether such items are overpaid, underpaid or correctly paid. We only point out that in any suit of clothes the farmer has a small amount.

"If the truth of this statement is doubted it can be proven by weighing a suit of clothes. Put any suit on the scales and see how much it weighs, including the warp, which is even the best woolen suits is made of cotton, the thread, buttons, wool and all. If every ounce of the weight were wool it will be seen that it would be impossible, at last year's prices, to get more than $5 worth into a suit, and most suits do not contain that much wool.

"If we figure eight pounds of wool as it is taken from the back of a sheep at 75 cents a pound and deduct a dollar for trimmings—short wool from head, legs and belly—it leaves $5 for the wool in a man's serviceable medium-weight all wool suit that will stand not only use but abuse.

"Wow if wool falls to half last year's price, it will make little, if any change in the price of a suit of clothes to the buyer, because the wool is the least of all items in the manufactured of a suit. But it will make tremendous difference in the pocket-book of the farmer."

In wool associations which ship direct to the State Association in Columbus wool growers see hope of salvation. They point out that such a practice makes for uniformity in handling wool, stabilizes the price without making it burdensome to the consumer, and does away with the necessity of the buyer.

The state association, it is said, makes no promises or prediction of prices, but simply takes a commission to cover expenses, and sells direct to the mills.

The proposed truth-in-fairies law, the wool men say, should be encouraged as a benefit to both buyer and seller. Such a law would make it illegal for a seller to assert his product was all-wool when, in fact, it was half shoddy.

World's News Agencies.

The European news agencies, such as Reuters, Havas and Wolff's are similar to the Associated Press in America and grew out of similar needs of co-operation of newspapers in obtaining news. Reuters' agency covers Europe generally, Havas agency is French and Wolff's German.

Cheering the invalid.

When a man is sick if he shall find in the house or the hospital a solemn nurse added to reading Gibbon and John Bunyan instead of Joe Miller's Joke Book and Mr. Dooley, he will grow steadily worse and the chances are that he will almost die before he gets well. A cheerful nurse with a laugh like running water, and eyes that dance, and a turn-up nose, is the greatest invention of the age in which we live.—Los Angeles Times.

Did You Ever Do This?

Visitors or strangers coming into an office are often embarrassed by the courtesy of office employees who ignore their presence—or wait for some one else to inquire the visitor's errand. Any employee who happens to be near when a stranger enters should address him courteously and ask if he can take a message or be of assistance. The visitor's impression of the employer often is affected by the attitude of the employee.—Biddy Eye.
